GLOBAL IMPACT OF COVID-19 ON AGRICULTURE

FIVE FACTS ON

THE PANDEMIC'S IMPACT ON FOOD SUPPLIES

1

Producers can't quickly switch between supplying restaurants to stores and food banks.

2

Panic buying, high demand and lost volunteers are squeezing food banks.

3

The food chain disruption is global.

4

Despite disruptions, the nation has ample food overall.

5

Thousands of U.S. parents say their children don't get enough food.

In this March 28, 2020, photo, a pile of ripe squash sits in a field, in Homestead, Fla. Thousands of acres of fruits and vegetables grown in Florida are being plowed over or left to rot because farmers can't sell to restaurants, theme parks or schools nationwide that have closed because of the coronavirus. Lynne Sladky, AP

Florida Farm to You

“We have worked tirelessly to support Florida’s farmers during COVID-19 by connecting them with buyers and consumers, and our Florida Farm To You commodities list is the latest way we’re doing so,” said Commissioner Nikki Fried. “There’s no silver bullet to solving the decreased demand from foodservice businesses, but by connecting our agricultural producers with willing takers, we can help move Florida-grown products from fields to consumers.”

PURPOSE. In light of recent market disruptions caused by COVID-19, the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services ("Department"), in hopes of assisting producers of agricultural and seafood commodities and those looking for agricultural and seafood commodities, has created this webpage where producers can post information regarding agricultural commodities to be accessed by the public. The Department is not a party to any transaction resulting from the use of the information available on this webpage and is not responsible for the medium and process of exchange and any issues that may arise. It will be up to you and the holder of the commodity to negotiate agreeable terms. Please exercise caution if you arrange any meeting and always take precautions to protect yourself, your property, your financial interests, and your personal identifying information. All parties are to abide by state and federal laws. If an issue arises, please contact 1-800-HELP-FLA (435-7352).

DISCLAIMER. All information appearing on this webpage, including but not limited to the name of any grower, description of agricultural or seafood commodity, quantity of commodity, and contact information, is based on information submitted to the Department which has not been reviewed or verified by the Department prior to it being posted on this page.
